

Insulin Pen Devices

Which device matches which insulin?

With drug companies producing several types of insulins it is often difficult to work out which insulin cartridge fits with which insulin pen.

Non disposable insulin devices must be compatible with the insulin product they were designed for. Some insulin cartridges will simply not fit into the wrong device or if they do fit but it has not been tested in that device, an accurate dose delivery can not be guaranteed. Most companies produce the pens in different colours so those using more than one type of insulin can easily differentiate between the pen with short acting insulin from that with a longer acting insulin.
